

Resilience Networks Inventory

This living document is a compilation of existing coastal resilience networks at a local or regional level, organized by geographic region. The tables include information such as the network name, geographic focus, additional information about the network (topics/mission and activities when available) and contact information. While the focus of these networks may extend beyond coastal inundation, this issue remains a key area of concern. If you are aware of additional networks or have updates to share, please reach out to help us keep this resource current and accurate.

ALASKA

Network Name	Geographic Focus	Additional Info	Contact
Adapt Alaska	AK	-Resulted from 2017 Promoting Coastal Resilience in Arctic Alaska workshops. Effort to learn, share, and build resilience to climate change in Alaska -Activities: Abundance of resources for Alaska-specific resilience efforts and funding, guidance for crafting solutions	Davin Holen dlholen@alaska.edu
Village Inter-Agency Planning Groups	AK in the villages of Newtok , Kivalina , Shaktoolik , and Shishmaref	-Each group focuses on “reducing duplication and increasing engagement between imminently-threatened communities, agencies, and organizations”	Sally Russell Cox sally.cox@alaska.gov
Alaska Center for Climate Assessment and Policy (ACCAP)	AK	-Alaska-based research team doing coproduction work on extreme events, tribal resilience, small grants, and outreach. They prioritize working with Alaska Native Peoples and rural communities -Activities: Webinars, interactive climate tools, repository of reports and products for communities	uaf-accap@alaska.edu

Alaska Water Level Watch	AK	Providing public access to water level data and products through innovative technologies and collaborative partnerships and to expand the coastal water level observation capacity across Alaska's coastline.	awlw@aos.org
